

Physics Lab Computer Policy

The computers located in the Physics Labs are intended to enhance the Physics Labs and to aid students in Data Collection and Data Analysis. Any student with a valid Auburn User ID may log on to the computers. However, it is the responsibility of the student to log off the computer prior to leaving the lab.

The use of the computers for activities such as checking e-mail, playing games, surfing the web, etc. is discouraged. Students found to be participating in such activities while the lab is in session may be requested to leave by the TA. The use of the computers to view inappropriate or offensive materials is prohibited. Students participating in such activities will be dismissed from the Physics Labs.

The computers have been configured to provide students convenience and security. The act of intentionally disabling or enabling features, or otherwise reconfiguring the computer without specific permission will result in dismissal from the Physics Labs. This includes changing backgrounds, changing icons, intentionally corrupting saved data files or program files, changing passwords, opening the computer case, etc.

Any student caught intentionally abusing any equipment in the Physics Labs will be dismissed by the TA and will have to request permission from the Lab Manager in order to return to the lab. This policy includes any type of physical or digital GRAFFITI.
